REPORTS OF SPECIAL AND JOINT COMMITTEES

From the Special Civic Committee—

Your Committee respectfully report and recommend that Mr. Godward, City Planning Engineer ,and Mr. Elsberg, City Engineer, be requested to turn over all data and reports pertaining to a union freight and passenger station in Minneapolis, in connection with the survey authorized by the Civic Committee in April, 1928, to the Joint Committee on Railroads and Aldermen of the Fifth, Sixth, Seventh, Eleventh and Twelfth Wards. We feel that this matter should be handled by the Joint Committee, thereby avoiding duplication of work.

O. J. Turner, F. H. Brown, Edward W. Hawley, O. A. Pearson, Albert G. Bastis, W. H. Rendell, Josiah H. Chase, Committee.

Adopted.

From the Joint Committee on Railroads and Aldermen of the Fifth, Sixth, Seventh, Eleventh and Twelfth Wards—

Your Committee having under consideration the hearing before the Railroad and Warehouse Commission on Monday, October 8, 1928, upon the petition of certain property owners in South Minneapolis, report and recommend as follows:

Upon direction of the Council, the City Attorney requested a continuance of the hearing until after January 1st, since City Engineer Elsberg, in charge of the engineering matters in the case, will not return until this week, and Norton M. Cross, who was in charge of the legal questions in the case, will not return until December 11, 1928. The Commission refused to grant a longer continuance than one week and the hearing is accordingly set for October 15.

As Mr. Cross, special counsel for the City, was occupied during one year and a half with an investigation, study and hearings in court on the present City ordinance requiring separation of grades, the legal department is not and cannot be prepared in the short time allowed by the Commission. It is recommended, therefore, that the City Attorney be authorized to request Mr. Cross to return to Minneapolis at the earliest possible date to represent the City before the Railroad and Warehouse Commission. Mr. Elsberg, City Engineer, and Mr. Godward, Planning Engineer for the City, are engaged in making a survey for the proposed joint passenger terminal at the present Great Northern Railway terminal site which would eliminate the necessity for the proposed separation of grades and simplify the grade crossing problem of the Milwaukee tracks in South Minneapolis, the Great Northern Railroad Company having offered terminal facilities that will take care of all the passenger service of the Milwaukee lines in South Minneapolis. There is also under consideration by the City Engineer and the Planning Commission Engineer a joint freight terminal plan for the City of Minneapolis.

In view of these pending projects for a joint passenger and freight terminal, your Committee is of opinion that action on the proposed separation of grades in South Minneapolis should be deferred ,and it is recommended that the City Attorney be authorized and directed to take the necessary steps to lay the matter of requiring joint passenger and joint freight terminals for the City of Minneapolis before the Interstate Commerce Commission for immediate action

RESOLUTION
(By Alderman Rendell)

On the death of Alderman George S. Sheffield.

Resolved by the City Council of the City of Minneapolis:

That in the death of George S. Sheffield, the City of Minneapolis has suffered the loss of a competent and faithful public official, and has also suffered the loss of one of its pioneer citizens, who occupied a prominent place in the civic and business affairs of our City.

George S. Sheffield was born near Warsaw, Indiana, 69 years ago. As a young man, he came to Minnesota and located in Minneapolis. Following the early business training that he had received, he associated himself with the firm of John Masury & Co., and remained with this concern for a period of over 40 years, retiring two years ago on account of ill health. He died on September 27, 1928, at his residence in this City.

Mr. Sheffield, during his long residence in Minneapolis, took a prominent part in the civic and business affairs of the City, and his activity and energy in the upbuilding of the City soon brought him into an outstanding place in both the civic and social life of this metropolis.

The distinguished characteristics of Mr. Sheffield were fearlessness, a strong will, and indomitable energy. He was genial, frank and generous, and never failed to exercise a large influence over all with whom he came in contact. Few men ever had more numerous or more devoted personal friends. His kindly and benevolent personality endeared him to all. Such were some of the outstanding characteristics of our departed friend and associate.

Now, therefore, be it resolved by the City Council of the City of Minneapolis that a copy of these sentiments be printed in its official proceedings, and that a suitable copy of same be sent by the City Clerk to the members of the family of our departed friend.

Passed October 26, 1928, John Ryan, President of the Council.

Approved October 31, 1928, George E. Leach, Mayor.

Attest, Chas. C. Swanson, City Clerk.

For the purpose of this paragraph any wire carrying over 250 volts to the ground shall be considered a high tension wire. If antennae or other equipment cross wires of less voltage than 250 volts to the ground such antennae and equipment must be kept at least two (2) feet away from such wire.

(o) Antennae and equipment erected over flat roofs shall be kept at least eight (8) feet above such roofs and antennae and equipment erected over peaked or hip roofs shall be kept at least twelve (12) inches above such roofs.

(p) All antennae lead in and ground conductors shall have durable insulation, such as enamel or rubber, and shall be not less than No. 14 if of copper or No. 17 if of bronze or copper clad steel.

(q) Where outdoor antennae may come in contact with electric light or power wires, the lead in conductor must be protected by an approved three (3) ampere fuse, or condensor or a resistance of at least 35 ohms capable of being connected to 125 volts continuously without reaching a temperature of 200 degrees F. Outdoor aerials must be protected by an approved lightning arrester, either inside or outside, near the point where the wires enter the building.

(r) Storage battery leads shall consist of conductors having an approved rubber insulation and shall be protected by an approved 6 ampere fuse within 18 inches along the wires from the battery terminals. The circuit from the plate "B" storage battery shall be properly protected by a circuit fuse or circuit-breaker rated at not more than one ampere in the negative lead.

Fifteenth, by striking out the word, "service", where it occurs immediately after the word, "fused," immediately after the word, "sealable," and immediately after the words, "line side of the," in subdivision (b), and where it occurs immediately after the word and figure, "five (5)," and immediately after the words, "same feeder the," in subdivision (d) of Section 42 of said ordinance, as heretofore amended, and substituting in lieu thereof, in each of said five instances, the word meter.

Sixteenth, by striking out subdivision (c) of said Section 42, as amended, and substituting in lieu thereof the following:

(c) Entrance and meter switches shall be externally operable, shall have a switchblade and fuse or circuit-breaker in each ungrounded wire, and a disconnecting means shall be provided in the grounded wire at the entrance switch or at each meter switch.

Seventeenth, by striking out the word and figure, "five (5)," where they occur, immediately after the words, "more than," in subdivision (d) of said Section 42, as amended, and substituting in lieu thereof the word and figure seven (7).

Eighteenth, by amending subdivision (1) of said Section 42, as amended, to read as follows:

(1) Switches used for controlling motors and other devices, unless mounted on switch-boards or panelboards, shall have no exposed live parts and shall be externally operable.

Nineteenth, by adding at the end of said Section 42, as amended, the following subdivision:

(m) Where practicable, fused switches shall be so wired that blades and fuses will be dead when the switch is open.

Twentieth, by striking out subdivision (f) of Section 44 of said ordinance, and substituting in lieu thereof the following:

(f) Bell transformers shall be mounted on outlet boxes, in cabinets or on fireproof surfaces and one conductor of the secondary shall be grounded to the conduit with a No. 14 B. and S. gauge wire and an approved ground clamp.

Twenty-first, by amending section 45 of said ordinance, as amended, to read as follows:

WIRING FOR LOW POTENTIAL SYSTEMS—600 VOLTS OR LESS.

Section 45. (a) Any circuit attached to any machine, or combination of machines, which develops a difference of potential between any two (2) wires of over ten (10) volts and less than six hundred (600) volts shall be considered as a low potential circuit and as coming under this class, unless an approved transforming device is used which cuts the difference of potential down to ten (10) volts or less.

(b) All electric light and power wiring run on the exterior of buildings must be in approved rigid metal conduit, and when the service is overhead, service outlets must be so located that only one set of brackets will be necessary for the service wires on the building. Provided, however, that approved metal trough may be used for outline, sign and decorative lighting.

(c) Approved metallic conduits, approved armored cables or approved metal raceways shall be required for all light, heat and power wiring.

Provided, however, that for minor alterations, extensions and repairs to existing systems, the Building Inspector may, in writing, permit deviations from the above requirement.

(d) Where conduit wiring is subjected to freezing temperature the conduit must be drained. This may be accomplished by inserting a tee pipe fitting at the lowest point of the conduit run and providing a one foot or more drain pipe extending downward into the soil.

(e) Rigid iron conduit must be used for all open wiring in basements, except that where other methods of wiring are permtited in the rest of the building, such other method of wiring may be used in the basement for a distance not exceeding three (3) feet.

(f) Bends of rigid or flexible metallic conduit shall be so made that the conduit will not be injured. The radius of the curve of the inner edge of any bend shall be not less than six times the internal diameter of the conduit. Care shall be taken to see that bends in the conduit are made as to avoid reducing the internal diameter of the conduit at the bend.

(g) Conduit shall be installed as a complete system without the wires, and shall be continuous, from outlet to outlet, and from fitting to fitting, and shall be mechanically and electrically connected to all fittings. The fittings connected to more than one run of conduit shall be so designed and connected that adequate electrical continuity from one conduit to another will be secured. The entire system shall be securely fastened in place.

(h) It is recommended, and may be required by the Building Inspector, that in conduit installations no wires be exposed at connections to motors, meters, signs, etc., but that approved boxes or fittings with covers be used where connections are made to the various devices.

The total area of cross-sections of conductors of mixed sizes in any conduit shall not exceed 40 per cent of the cross-section of the space in such conduit as computed by Table C of this section. The figures in column 4 are 40 per cent of the total area.

(j) A run of conduit, between outlet and outlet or between fitting and fitting, shall include not more than the equivalent of 4 quarter bends.

(k) All ends of conduit shall be reamed to remove rough edges, and where a conduit enters a box or other fitting, an approved bushing shall be provided to protect the wire from abrasion, unless the design of the box or fittings is such as to afford equivalent protection.

(l) Wires shall not be drawn in until all mechanical work on the building has been, as far as possible, completed.

Conductors in vertical conduit risers shall be supported within the conduit system in accordance with the following table:

No. 14 to 0 every 100 feet.
No. 00 to 0000 every 80 feet.
0000 to 350,000 C. M. every 60 feet.
350,000 C. M. to 500,000 C. M. every 50 feet.
500,000 C. M. to 750,000 C. M. every 40 feet.
Above 750,000 C. M. every 35 feet.

Conductors shall be supported by one of the following methods, or by some equivalent method approval of which shall have first been secured from the Building Inspector:

1. Two ninety (90) degree bends in the conduit run.
2. Clamping devices constructed of or employing insulating wedges inserted in the ends of conduits.
3. Approved junction boxes in which the conductors are deflected not less than ninety (90) degrees, run horizontally a distance of not less than twice the diameter of the conductor and fastened to insulating supports.

(m) The two or more wires of a circuit shall be drawn in the same conduit.

The same conduit shall never contain circuits of different systems, but may contain two or more circuits of the same system.

The wires shall leave the conduit through approved fittings.

(n) Outlet boxes and wall cases for concealed wiring in new buildings must be flush with the surface so as not to expose wood lath or other combustible material and must be supported by approved box supports, or boards at least ⅞-inch in thickness. Outlet and switch boxes must not be supported by lath. Each wall case must have a support in addition to being connected to adjacent wall cases.

(o) For concealed wiring lighting outlets for wall brackets must, where practicable, have approved four (4) inch outlet boxes equipped with covers having a three (3) inch opening, and shall be equipped with fixture studs and ears. Lighting outlets for ceilings must have four (4) inch outlet boxes equipped with fixture studs and ears. Junction boxes must be installed in such a manner as to be accessible. In concealed wiring, where the conduit enters through the side of an outlet box, the distance between the conduit and the front edge of such box must not be less than ¾ inch where practicable.

(p) Wires the size of No. 8 B. and S. gauge and smaller, when used as two-wire feeders, sub-feeders and circuits, must have a continuous identifying marker for the grounded conductor. For rubber covered wire, the identification shall consist of a white or natural gray covering.

(q) Unless herein otherwise provided, nothing but approved rubber covered wire shall be used, except by special permission from the Building Inspector, and in each case where such special permission is obtained, special ruling shall be obtained from the Building Inspector, relative to required carrying capacity and method of installation.

(r) No main service feeders for any installation shall be smaller than No. 10 B. and S. gauge wires, and where a total load of more than four 1,000 watt circuits at 110 volts is to be connected to service wires from other than isolated plants, three-wire main feeders will be required.

(s) Joists and rafters shall not be notched, except on the upper edge, and then within 18 inches of the bearing, and shall not be bored, except half way between upper and lower edges of such joists and rafters.

(t) Conduits, wireways, boxes and cabinets shall be securely fastened so as not to cause undue strain on the lock nuts, bushings and couplings. Conduit and armored cable shall be supported every five (5) feet or less by pipe straps. Flexible steel conduit shall be supported by a strap within six inches of each connector, except in fish work, where it is impracticable.

Twenty-second, by striking out subdivision (e) of Section 46, of said ordinance, and substituting in lieu thereof the following:

(e) The main line service for high tension installations within buildings shall be protected by approved fuses and oil circuit breakers provided with overload protection and so arranged that an overload in any one phase will operate to disconnect all ungrounded conductors.

Twenty-third, by adding at the end of subdivision (g) of said Section 46 the following sentence:

The exposed high tension wiring and accessories in the enclosure shall be separated by grill work or other approved methods from the space of said enclosure normally used by the operator.

Twenty-fourth, by adding at the end of said Section 46 the following subdivision:

(h) High tension wires must not be attached to any bracket on a building but shall enter the building through conduit from a pole located at least eight (8) feet away from the building.

From the Standing Committee on Commerce, Markets and Harbors and Alderman Chase—

Your Committee to whom was referred report from the members of your body, who attended the National Rivers and Harbors Congress in Washington, D. C., December 5, 6 and 7, 1928, respectfully report and recommend that the report as submitted, be published in the Council Proceedings in full.

John Peterson, W. A. Currie, Frank H. Brown, Josiah H. Chase, O. J. Turner, Committee.

Adopted.

Following is the report referred to:

To the Honorable City Council—

Pursuant to authorization, your Committee attended the National Rivers and Harbors Congress held at Washington, D. C., December 4, 5, and 6, 1928.

Inasmuch as the activities of the Rivers and Harbors Congress in relation to waterways transportation are not so well known to the average citizen, as to those who have been associated with its work for a number of years, therefore, it seems proper that your Committee should point out the few things that the Rivers and Harbors Congress has accomplished in the past, and what its program is for the future.

The Rivers and Harbors Congress was organized twenty-five years ago, and held its first convention twenty-four years ago. Its membership is largely made up of shippers, State and Municipal officials, and waterway advocates. Its prime object is to support and push to the limit all waterway projects which have been recommended by the War Department Engineers; and to lend its influence toward having surveys made in rivers wherever it appears possible to develop a navigable channel. The Rivers and Harbors Congress maintain a working organization in Washington, D. C., with field men who are transportation experts. They will respond to the call of any State or Municipal government, or of business organizations using waterways for transportation, or having waterways transportation problems to solve. This service is without expense to them.

The organization this session elected 250 directors and one vice president from each State, which holds membership in the organization. Minneapolis was given ten (10) directors and the vice president, by reason of the loyal support it has rendered in the past, as well as it did at the convention.

These directors, together with the officials in Washington, D. C., keep in constant touch with Congress, the President, the Chief of Engineers, the District Engineers, and the Secretary of War, for these groups of Government officials are the factors in the development of waterways. In short, if it were not for the National Rivers and Harbors Congress and the Mississippi Valley Association, there would not have been a navigable stream developed in this Country, or a barge floating thereon, because of the fact that previous to the existence of the waterway organization, the railroads killed off all the transportation barge lines operating on the Lower Mississippi River, until there were only a few packet boats afloat, whereas, now there are thousands of barges carrying millions of tons of freight annually, at a great saving to the shippers. Since 1920 over $13,000,000.00 has been saved on the Lower Mississippi River alone, and Minneapolis bids fair to become the head of navigation on the Mississippi River with a direct route to the markets of the world, by way of New Orleans.

This achievement could not be accomplished without the present Waterways organizations. No one is able to comprehend the great service the Rivers and Harbors Congress has rendered for the promotion of Inland Waterways, particularly the work it has done for the development of the Upper Mississippi in which Minneapolis is so vitally interested, except those who have been associated with it during the past sixteen (16) years.

It has also lent its full support towards inducing the National Government to enter into the operation of the Barge Line on the Mississippi, and the Warrior River, a proposition which no private capital would have undertaken.

Millions of dollars have been expended in the Twin Cities for labor and material in the construction of the High Dam. The War Department has ordered that so far as possible, all materials shall be purchased in the Twin Cities, and that local labor be employed.

Construction of another dam is contemplated in the vicinity of the Twin Cities, as soon as Congress receives a favorable report on the proposed nine (9) foot channel. In our opinion, this report will be submitted to Congress during this session.

In view of these facts, the City Council of Minneapolis is justified in supporting the Rivers and Harbors Congress with the nominal fee of $200.00 per year and sending a delegation to its convention at an expense of a thousand dollars per year, or even more (as it was a year ago).

What did the delegation accomplish a year ago? It secured sixty (60) more barges and four (4) tow boats for the Upper River at an expense of nearly two million dollars ($2,000,000.00); the Hastings Lock and Dam at two million dollars ($2,000,000.00); laid the foundation for dredgin gthe river north and south of our terminals at a cost of $115,000.00,—all of which has been granted, except the dredging North of Washington Avenue Bridge, which entails an expense of $100,000.00.

Your Committee's accomplishment in Washington at this session of the Rivers and Harbors Congress may be summed up as follows:

Received a favorable recommendation of Major General Edgar Jadwin, Chief of Engineers U. S. Army to change the harbor line and dredge the channel North of Washington Avenue Bridge at the estimated cost of $100,000.00; also had three quarters hour conversation with the General in regard to the nine foot channel, and your Committee was very much impressed with his views on the subject.

We also had two conferences with Senator Shipstead and Congressmen Newton and Goodwin in regard to the dredging and the nine (9) foot channel, both of which proved successful, because the Chairman of your Committee received a letter from Congressman Walter Newton Monday, December 10th, stating that a survey has been ordered by Congress for the purpose of establishing a new harbor line and dredging the channel according to plans submitted by our City Engineer, N. W. Elsberg.

It is proper that your Committee should call your attention to the fact that in dredging within the boundary line of River Terminals, it has generally been the policy of the Army Engineers to recommend to Congress that the Mnicipality do the dredging at its own expense, but your Committee received favorable action from Major General Jadwin, also from Senator Shipstead and Congressmen Newton and Goodwin, which will effect a saving to the taxplayers of $115,000.00.

Besides, these conferences, your Committee, with the other delegation from Minneapolis, was invited to a luncheon at the Army and Navy Club by Major General T. Q. Ashburn, Chairman and Executive of the Inland Waterways Corporation, at which we had an hour and a half general conversation with the General in relation to the operation of the Barge Line on the Mississippi River from Minneapolis to New Orleans. Without going into detail of the discussion, we were very much pleased with the attitude and friendly feeling expressed by the General towards Minneapolis, and in fact, the entire Upper District.

General Ashburn expressed the desire to co-operate with the Minneapolis City Council and the Board of Estimate and Taxation. The General outlined a course of operation on the Mississippi Line by adding more barges to the Lower River so as to overcome the congestion at St. Louis, which existed during the period of grain shipment this season. He claimed that the cause of delay in the shipment of grain from Minneapolis was not due to the lack of barges in the Upper River, but to congestion at St. Louis, and lack of equipment at that point to carry the Upper River cargoes to New Orleans. This congestion will be overcome next season by adding more tows on the Lower River. He also recognized that additional barges are needed for the Upper River.

We were also very much pleased with the General's views regarding the shipment of coal to the Twin Cities. He said that as soon as the Minneapolis coal terminals are completed, he will rig out barges suitable to carry grain down stream and coal up stream to the Twin Cities and other points. He claimed that the shipment of coal in grain barges was both practical and economically sound.

Outside of local matters, to which your Committee has attended in Washington, we gathered much information relative to waterways from the speakers who addressed the convention. The most prominent speakers were Honorable Senator Jos. E. Ransdell from Louisiana and Honorable Henrik Shipstead from Minnesota, Major General Edgar Jadwin, Chief of Engineers U. S. Army; Major General T. Q. Ashburn, Executive Inland Waterways Corporation; Honorable Dwight F. Davis, Secretary of War; Honorable E. E. Denison, Congressman from Illinois, and many other men and women who are nationally known to the friends of waterways.

While it may appear that Minneapolis has not received an appreciable dividend on the money it has invested in its river terminals, nevertheless, there has been carried approximately 120,189 tons of freight by barge into Minneapolis during the past year. This presents an approximate saving of $125,000.00 to $150,000.00 to the public and business interests of Minneapolis.

The Great Lakes-St. Lawrence project is supported by the State of Minnesota and several other states throughout the Northwest, which maintain a department at Washington where only work is to look out for legislation for this project. Minnesota, to this time, has appropriated $100,000.00.

The statement made that the congressmen can look out for this matter is absurb and unreasonable. It is impossible for them to have the details of all the plans of river development, channel improvement and terminal constructions, and at the same time look out for matters of national importance.

Your Committee therefore recommends:

1. That the City Council continue its policy of sending delegates and representatives and City officials to conventions in which matters of importance to the City of Minneapolis are to be considered.

2. That the City Council in view of the fact that it is responsible for the expenditure at the request of the citizens of Minneapolis and practically every organization and of the press, of some $750,000.00 for the construction of adequate terminals, accept the responsibility placed upon it and take the necessary steps and expend the necessary money to protect this investment in behalf of the citizens of the City of Minneapolis. Self-appointed delegates and representatives have been attending official hearings and have called meetings of various character to consider progress of further development of the river. Of these meetings the City Council has in many cases not even been advised. To some of them they have not even had the opportunity of sending representatives. Why should the City Council be subject to constant demands for the expenditure of additional money and not be able without criticism to take the position or be given the opportunity of making the necessary investigation and survey to ascertain whether or not such additional improvements are essential or necessary?

3. That the City Council officially take the position by the adoption of this report that the government officials charged with the responsibility of the development of the Inland Waterways, including President Coolidge, are co-operating in every way, which is reasonably possible to secure for Minneapolis and the Upper River a channel of a satisfactory depth and a fleet of barges of sufficient number to take care of the freight which is available on the upper river for transportation by barges It is unfair and unreasonable to expect official Washington to endorse any program which we may propose when the press and individuals self-appointed carry on a public and private campaign of malice and censure.

4. That the City Council hereby extends a vote of confidence to President Coolidge, Mr. Herbert Hoover, Major General Edgar Jadwin, Chief of Engineers U. S. Army, Major General T. Q. Ashburn, Senator Henrik Shipstead, Congressman Walter H Newton, Godfrey H. Goodwin, and the many Minneapolis business men, organizations and service clubs, for the work they have done in aiding in the development of the Upper River.

5. That the City Council recommend that a program for the development of the river above the Falls may begin immediately.

6. That the Inland Waterways Corporation and the District Engineer be requested to notify the City Council in matters which pertain to the development of the Upper River, so that in case of a hearing or in case of the submission or examination of reports made by Government Officials, the City Council may have the opportunity of sending its representative, its engineer or its attorney to attend such hearings or to examine such reports. It is surely as much within the duty, the province and privileges of the City Council to be represented in the matters as it is to individuals or organizations with no responsibility to the public or the citizens of Minneapolis to be granted such courtesy and consideration.

At a later date, your Committee will submit an additional report relative to the shipment of coal and iron ore.

Your Chairman, together with the Assistant Engineer, E. R. T. Peterson, while in St. Louis, made a preliminary study of the products of two coal mining companies, the Agara Coal Company, Mr. Mark Woods, President, and The Southern Coal Coke and Mining Company, Mr. W. K. Kavanaugh, President.

The Committee, while at Washington, met the President of the West Kentucky Coal Company and discussed the possibilities of shipping his coal to Minneapolis by water.

Your Committee with the City Engineer is now studying the relative merits of these coals, as to heat units and chemical composition.

REPORTS OF SPECIAL AND JOINT COMMITTEES

From the Special Committee on Street Railways and Buses—

Your Committee having under consideration the application of the Minneapolis Street Railway Company before the Railroad and Warehouse Commission for an increase in rates of fare, which proceeding is now pending, beg to report as folloys:

Mr. Walter W. Cooper, the City's expert, and the City Attorney appeared before your Committee and reported the steps taken by them and their proposed plan of presenting the case of the City before the Commission.

The valuation as of January 1, 1925, fixed at that time by the Commission, was $26,787,228.11, this figure having been fixed by the Commission after prolonged hearings and agreed to by stipulation between the City and the Company in Federal Court. It seems clear that nothing is to be gained now by considering anew the question of valuation. Changes in price levels of materials entering into the construction of the street railway, and other costs connected therewith, have not in general fluctuated enough to make a material difference in general price levels as compared with 1925. Furthermore, it appears that courts and commissions are averse to making frequent valuations. The proposal of the City's expert and the City's attorney, therefore, to accept the 1925 figure fixed by the Commission, with certain adjustments relating to the depreciation reserve, as the fair valuation basis in this proceeding, is approved.

It appears that since 1925 there has been a falling off in the street car traffic, the number of passengers now being carried being approximately fourteen million less than in 1925. The result is that the revenues of the company have correspondingly decreased. The operating expenses of the company during this period, according to Mr. Cooper, in general are not subject to criticism. He differs from the company's conclusions in some items, but the amounts involved are not large enough to materailly affect the total result. Recommendations as to these several differences will be reported to the Commission.

It is proposed to add to the revenues on the street car lines the revenues derived from the Nicollet avenue bus lines which have been profitable, yielding for the first ten months of the year 1928 a profit of approximately $25,000. It is believed that this bus line is rendering, strictly speaking, a street car service being in the nature of an auxiliary transportation line. Since the company carries the load of the other inter-City bus lines, such as cross town buses, which have not been profitable, it seems only fair that as against this the car riders should get the benefit of the Nicollet avenue bus line which is profitable.

As directed by motion of the council, Mr. Cooper investigated the status of the taxicabs assumed to be owned and operated by the Minneapolis Street Railway Company. He reports that the Minneapolis Street Railway Company has no interest or connection with the operation of these taxicabs. The Twin City Rapid Transit Company carries certain stock of the taxicab company on its books as an investment. The matter of the ownership and operation of the taxicabs, therefore, is not material to the problem before the commission.

The figures presented show that since 1925 the Minneapolis Street Railway Company has failed to earn 7½ per cent on the valuation fixed by the commission. It is assumed that at the present fare the company will earn in 1929 approximately $1,450,000.00, which falls short of 7½ per cent of the valuation fixed by the commission by approximately $600,000.00. It was pointed out, however, that, due to the changes in the money situation since 1925, a less return than 7½ per cent is now a fair rate of return. It appears that the bankers who testified before the Commission this week agreed upon a somewhat lower rate of return than the rate agreed upon by them in 1925. It was also shown that statistics showing the trend of utility security prices and other security prices since 1925 indicate that a lower rate of return than 7½ per cent is now a fair one. The City's representative propose to show that 6½ per cent is now a fair rate of return for the Minneapolis Railway Company. While recognizing that the company has not received and is not now receiving a return of 7½ per cent upon the fair value of the property, it was pointed out that an increase in the rate of fare generally results in some falling off of traffic, and that fares may be raised to a point where the company will earn less than it would earn at a lower rate of fare. Under these circumstances it was suggested that the Commission should consider whether or not in the long run it may not work disadvantageously to the company and to the car riders to make any increase in rates of fares. It was urged that any substantial increase would probably defeat its purpose. The City, therefore, will not propose or recommend an increase in the rate of fare.

F. H. Brown, Walter C. Robb, John P. Ekberg, W. A. Currie, O. A. Pearson, John Swanson, L. N. Ritten, J. R. Sheffield, Sidney Benson, Committee.

From the Standing Committee on Commerce, Markets and Harbors—

Your Committee respectfully recommend that the report of Alderman Peterson on his trip to St. Louis, Missouri, November 26th and 27th, 1928, to attend the Mississippi Valley Association Convention be adopted, and we further recommend that the report be published in the official proceedings of this meeting.

John Peterson, W. A. Currie, F. H. Brown, L. N. Ritten, Committee.

Adopted.

Following is the report referred to:

To the Honorable City Council:

Pursuant to authorization, the undersigned attended the tenth annual convention of the Mississippi Valley Association, held at St. Louis, Mo., November 26-27, 1928, at which twenty states were represented by delegates. The Upper Mississippi Valley district was represented by sixty delegates.

Unified support was given to all waterways programs which are under consideration by local interests as well as those which have been recommended by the Army Engineers.

The contemplated 9-foot channel of the Upper Mississippi River received loyal support from the convention and from those who addressed it.

The Mississippi Valley Association is by far the largest and the most influential waterways organization in the United States, with the exception of the National Rivers and Harbors Congress—it embraces twenty states whose resources constitute 66% of the national wealth.

The prime factors in Inland Waterways development organized the Mississippi Valley Association before the war, and ten years ago it embraced a larger territory which necessitated the changing of its name to the Mississippi Valley Association. Thus, it enlarged upon its political influence, which was necessary in order to combat the enmity of the railroads and the Atlantic Coast states.

The Mississippi Valley Association, as well as the former organization has done an immense amount of work for the initiation and promotion of waterways in the valley; as result of its activities, billions of dollars have been saved to the shippers since the Inland Waterways Corporation began operation.

Minneapolis has received a fair share of the profit resulting from the reduced freight rates. While the barge line has not been operated more than one season, on the Upper Mississippi River, nevertheless, the shippers have saved from $125,000.00 to $150,000.00. During this period of operation, thousands of factories have sprung up along its route and tributary thereto, which otherwise could not have existed because of the prevailing discriminatory freight rate. When the system of waterways is completed as outlined by the War Department Engineers and promoters, Minneapolis alone will effect a saving in freight reduction, and gain a business advantage over the present unfavorable freight rate condition, of at least ten million per year. But that is not all, for Minneapolis will receive its share of the prosperity, which waterways have brought about in other parts of the country. By means of waterways transportation, America will be better able to compete with Europe in the world's market, a statement which has been made upon many occasions by Herbert Hoover, the President-elect.

It might be of interest to your Honorable Body to know the approximate amount which the Federal Government has expended for the development of inland waterways and coastwise harbors. The amount is divided as follows:

On Coastwise Harbors	$500,000,000
Panama Canal	400,000,000
The Mississippi System	452,270,217

A total of $1,352,270,217. Of this vast sum, the Federal Government has spent only a few millions for the improvement of the Upper Mississippi Basin. This is due to lack of interest among the shippers and the press in the Twin Cities.

Of late years, however, the business men and shippers in the Twin Cities have rendered excellent service in connection with the Mississippi Valley Association relative to the deepening of the Upper Mississippi channel and the promotion of the Inland Waterways Corporation. These business men came forward at the critical time, when private capital looked unfavorably upon the financing of the barge line. Hence they induced the Federal Government to assist them in financing a barge line on the Upper River.

The Minneapolis Council has been the pioneer promoter of the Upper Mississippi Channel. It originated in a movement twenty years ago, and ever since, it has worked incessantly for the development of the river and will continue to do so until the project is fully completed and the people of Minneapolis have fully realized the benefits therefrom.

When we look over the vast amount of $452,270,217.00 which the Government has already expended for the development of the Mississippi system, and realize that it takes only $96,000,000.00 more to complete the entire project, there should be no hesitation on the part of the Government to do so.

A few things that the Mississippi Valley Association has initiated and accomplished relative to the improvement of Inland Waterways and transportation thereon should be mentioned for your information. It supported the proposition that the Federal Government operate a Barge Line on the Mississippi and Warrior Rivers. It furnished the main working force of experts to defeat the passage of the original Denison Bill, which if adopted, would have threatened the future of barge transportation on the Upper River. Through its experts, another bill was substituted which was passed by Congress. It contained the following provisions:

That no barge line shall be sold or leased to private capital before the Channel is completed to its full depth. That no part of any water route shall be sold separately or leased separately.

These clauses in the bill protected the Upper Mississippi District. This bill also provided an increase in the capital stock of the Inland Waterways corporation of $10,000,000.00 to provide additional equipment with which to carry the ever increasing freight. It gave the Interstate Commerce Commission authority to establish joint rates between the rail lines connecting with the river lines so that tributaries to the river cities will participate in the benefits of water transportation.

The Mississippi Valley Association through its officials helped to secure an appropriation of $3,800,000.00 for the Hastings Dam with a standard lock chamber, and has rendered valuable service in connection with the 9-foot channel. It employs a corps of transportation economists and experts who are versed in legal matters and engineering problems. These experts together with the executive board of the Association are constantly at work in the valley for all waterway projects. The work they did in gathering data to overcome the objections of Major Hall to the 9-foot channel could not have been purchased for $25,000.00. In view of these facts, it is a sound investment for the taxpayers to pay $50.00 annual dues, to the Mississippi Valley Association and send a delegation to its convention thereby showing their appreciation to delegates and workers in the Valley. Your Committee recommends, however, that in the future meetings and conventions of the upper division of the Association, and at meetings of the executive board, the City Council send its full committee on Commerce Markets and Harbors.

The Convention of 1928 was well attended and the speakers were many and of national prominence. Among them were Newton Cleveland, General Counsel for the Association; Secretary of War, Mr. Davis; Congressman E. E. Denison of Illinois, Senator Henrik Shipstead of Minnesota; Senator Reed of Missouri; William R. Dawes of the Chicago Association of Commerce; Major General Ashburn and many prominent business men and shippers in the Valley, all of whom urged upon Congress to appropriate sufficient funds with which to speedily complete the waterways projects which are under construction and to speed up the projects which are under survey and consideration.

Much petty criticism has been published and spread to the effect that the whole scheme of Inland Waterways transportation is a mere dream, that it would not pay. The report of the Inland Waterways corporation shows to the contrary, that not only have the shippers saved 20% but the carrier has profited as well. The Lower Mississippi Barge Line netted $540,883.00 for nine months of 1928. It carried 1,031,459 tons of freight—the Warrior division carried 245,000, and the upper 70,820 a total of 1,347,369, while the Warrior and the Upper Division did not show a net saving to the corporation because of lack of equipment and lack of a sufficient channel. Nevertheless, a net saving was effected on the three divisions to the amount of $277,782.00.

Your Commmittee while at St. Louis spent considerable time studying the proposition of shipping coal and iron ore on the river We had conferences with the following coal mining companies and iron ore users, The Southern Coal, Coke and Mining Company of St. Louis, Missouri, W. K. Kavanaugh, President, The Ogara Coal Company, Martin Woods, President We gained considerable knowledge from these conferences, and are now studying the merits of the coals. A report on these matters is forthcoming.

(Signed) John Peterson.

Your Committee respectfully recommend that the heads of the departments and the City Purchasing Agent be requested, when advertising for bids on commodities for shipment, to include in their specifications that shipment be routed via the Barge Line wherever it is practical, everything being equal in freight charges. We particularly recommend that shipments of water pipes be routed over the Barge Line.

RESOLUTION
(By Aldermen Bastis, Peterson and Ekberg)

On the death of Theodore E. Jenson.

Resolved by the City Council of the City of Minneapolis:

Theodore E. Jenson, a member of the Board of County Commissioners of Hennepin County, and a former member of the City Council of Minneapolis, died December 22, 1928, at the age of fifty-four years.

Mr. Jenson was born in Estherville Iowa. When a small child, he moved to Lyle, Minnesota, with his parents, where he lived until he was fifteen years of age, at which time he moved to Minneapolis. Following his early education and a desire to study chemistry, he continued his studied along this line and was graduated from the Drews College of Pharmacy. For several years thereafter he engaged in this vocation, but due to the confining nature of his work and the further fact that he was not possessed of a rugged constitution, he decided to follow other lines of work and entered the employ of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway Company.

Always a close student of government and politics, he became a successful candidate for a seat in the City Council and was elected on January 1, 1917. He served as a member of the Council with distinguished ability for a period of eight years. In the discharge of his duties he was calm, deliberate and thorough, and his elevation to the presidency of this body was a fitting tribute to his character and attainments.

His official and private life was marked by fearlessness in the expression and defense of his convictions, and his loyalty to friends and the cause which he expounded won the love of his friends and the admiration of those whom he opposed. Such a man necessarily exerts a strong influence upon his surroundings, and always the life of such a man is a useful one. In every position in which he served, whether by appointment or chosen thereto by the people, he fully met all requirements. No one ever questioned his integrity and sincerity of purpose. He enjoyed the unbounded confidence of all who knew him. In his untimely death Minneapolis has suffered the loss of a useful and honored citizen. A devoted husband, a kind father, a good citizen, sympathetic to the poor and needy, he leaves behind not only the members of his own family, but a host of friends, to mourn his loss.

We respectfully submit the foregoing brief and imperfect statement of the life and virtues of our deceased brother and friend as an expression of the high esteem in which we held him in life, the regret we feel at his death and the honor in which we hold his memory, and ask that the same be spread upon the proceedings of this body and that a copy of same be sent to the immediate members of his family.

Passed January 4, 1929. John Ryan, President of the Council.

Approved January 5, 1929. George E. Leach, Mayor.

Attest: Chas. C. Swanson, City Clerk.

CITY COUNCIL

ADJOURNED SESSION

Of the Regular Meeting of Dec. 28, 1928

January 7, 1929

OFFICIAL PROCEEDINGS

(Published January 9, 1929, in The Minneapolis Star)
Council Chamber,
Minneapolis, Minnesota,
January 7, 1929, 10:00 a.m.

The Council met pursuant to adjournment.

Present—Aldermen Hawley, Chase, Sweeney, Maurer, Fruen, Currie, Brown, Rosander, Peterson, Bastis, Turner, Swanson, Rendell, Sheffield, Pearson, Gisslen, Guider, Benson, Johnson, Ekberg, Blomberg, Kjorlaug, Robb, President Ryan—24.

Al. P. Erickson, County Auditor, called the Council to order, explaining that he had been advised by the County Attorney to take this action for the purpose of selecting a County Commissioner to fill the vacancy in the 2nd County Commissioner District. As this matter had already been considered by the Council at a previous meeting, with no election resulting, Mr. Erickson stated that he would turn the meeting over to the City Council to proceed with the election, and called President Ryan to the chair.

President Ryan called on Mr. Wiging, Assistant City Attorney, for the opinion of the City Attorney and the Attorney General on the question of the number of votes necessary to elect a County Commissioner to fill a vacancy, and as to whether the County Attorney should vote with the City Council in case of a tie vote.

Mr. Wiggin made the statement that the opinion of the Attorney General was that a majority of a quorum was sufficient to elect a County Commissioner, this not being a City office.

On the question as to the County Attorney voting with the Council on the election of a County Commissioner, the Attorney General reserved his opinion, this question to be decided ten days from this date, in case there is no election today.

Alderman Rendell moved that we proceed to ballot for County Commissioner.

Adopted.

Alderman Rendell moved that the report of the City Attorney be published in full in the proceedings of this meeting.

Adopted.

Following is the report referred to:

To the Honorable City Council—

At the request of the Special Committee on Elections, I am submitting herewith an opinion as to the status of Mr. and Mrs. Decker, members of the Library Board and the Board of Education, respectively, the Committee having submitted to me the transcript of the proceedings before the Committee on January 14, 1929, and the request for an opinion based upon the facts appearing at said hearing.

The Committee was advised at the close of the hearing, when this motion was made, that the truth of all of the testimony of Mr. and Mrs. Decker would be assumed. Both of them testified that they had no intention of leaving Minneapolis and making Excelsior their home, but that it was their intention to return to Minneapolis in the fall. Both voted at Excelsior in the general election, and Mrs. Decker's residence is given in the Minneapolis school directory as Excelsior, Minnesota. It was explained that they voted at Excelsior upon the advice of the Republican Headquarters in Minneapolis. They had in mind returning to the Oak Grove Hotel in Minneapolis for the winter, and the lease upon the house they had been living in in Minneapolis having expired, there was doubt in their minds as to where they should vote.

The general rule regarding change of residence is stated as follows:

"In order to work a change of residence, there must be both in fact and intention an abandonment of the former residence and a new domicile acquired by actual residence, coupled with an intention to make it a permanent home."

A mere change of residence is not sufficient to acquire a new domicile, unless th echange is intended to be permanent. In view of the testimony of Mr. and Mrs. Decker, I am of the opinion that the circumstance of having voted in Excelsior through error and of Mrs Decker's address appearing in the school directory as Excelsior, Minnesota, are not sufficient to constitute a change of domicile. In other words, it seems to me it must be held that their residence at Excelsior was temporary, and that they must be considered as having been residents of Minneapolis during all this time.

Neil M. Cronin,
City Attorney.

F. S. Gram, Purchasing Agent—Report supplementing tabulation of bids on automobile tires submitted on January 11, 1929, and recommending the purchase of passenger tire casings and tubes, also truck tubes, from the Diamond Rubber Co., and all truck tires from the Northwestern Tire Co., these firms being the low bidders and the commodities first class. Referred to Committee on Ways and Means.

Dr. F. E. Harrington—Reports relative to food licenses, recommending that certain licenses be not granted, and submitting inspections on certain applications without recommendations. Referred to Committee on Health and Hospitals.

The Minneapolis Public Library—Acknowledging receipt of silver service from the Cruiser "Minneapolis."
